Introduction

AL I,54: Change not as much as the style of a letter; for behold! thou, o prophet, shalt not behold all these mysteries hidden therein.

AL I,55: The child of thy bowels, he shall behold them.

AL I,56: Expect him not from the East, nor from the West; for from no expected house cometh that child. Aum! All words are sacred and all prophets true; save only that they understand a little; solve the first half of the equation, leave the second unattacked. But thou hast all in the clear light, and some, though not all, in the dark.

AL I,57: Invoke me under my stars! Love is the law, love under will. Nor let the fools mistake love; for there are love and love. There is the dove, and there is the serpent. Choose ye well! He, my prophet, hath chosen, knowing the law of the fortress, and the great mystery of the House of God.

All these old letters of my Book are aright; but [tzaddi] is not the Star. This also is secret: my prophet shall reveal it to the wise.

--Liber AL vel Legis sub figura CCXX

Liber Al Vel Legis, more commonly known as the Book of the Law was “received” by Aleister Crowley in Cairo Egypt on April 8-10, 1904. The Book was Crowley was told, to be the annunciation of the New Aeon, the next spiritual Age in the cycles of time. The concept of Aeons was, at the time, the subject of some debate; the discovery of evolution had taken root and was now applied to almost everything, the subject of religions and their development yielded many interesting arguments that the religious thought of mankind could, indeed, must be viewed as a process of evolutionary unfolding, putting the lie to the claims of revealed religion and similar doctrine. In conjunction with the (less controversial) idea that much of ancient pagan religion was in fact astronomical in nature – particularly Egypt – the ideas struck a chord with the Victorian ages more outré thinkers, Mme. Blavatsky perhaps the most well remembered but Gerald Massey is certainly no less important.

The concept of the Aeon was intrinsic to the Book of the Law, it was so to say the reason it was “revealed”. The being who delivered the book, Aiwass, was according to Crowley an objectively separate being from himself, possessing far more knowledge than he or any other human could possibly have. As Crowley writes in his Confessions: "I was bound to admit that Aiwass had shown a knowledge of the Cabbala immeasurably superior to my own" [4] and "We are forced to conclude that the author of The Book of the Law is an intelligence both alien and superior to myself, yet acquainted with my inmost secrets; and, most important point of all, that this intelligence is discarnate." [5] Finally, this excerpt (also from Confessions, ch.49):

"The existence of true religion presupposes that of some discarnate intelligence, whether we call him God or anything else. And this is exactly what no religion had ever proved scientifically. And this is what The Book of the Law does prove by internal evidence, altogether independent of any statement of mine. This proof is evidently the most important step in science that could possibly be made: for it opens up an entirely new avenue to knowledge. The immense superiority of this particular intelligence, AIWASS, to any other with which mankind has yet been in conscious communication is shown not merely by the character of the book itself, but by the fact of his comprehending perfectly the nature of the proof necessary to demonstrate the fact of his own existence and the conditions of that existence. And, further, having provided the proof required."

However, Crowley also spoke of Aiwass in symbolic terms. In The Law is for All, [7] he goes on at length in comparison to various other deities and spiritual concepts, but most especially to The Fool. For example, he writes of Aiwass: "In his absolute innocence and ignorance he is The Fool; he is the Saviour, being the Son who shall trample on the crocodiles and tigers, and avenge his father Osiris. Thus we see him as the Great Fool of Celtic legend, the Pure Fool of Act I of Parsifal, and, generally speaking, the insane person whose words have always been taken for oracles."

Perhaps more importantly, Crowley later identified Aiwass as his own personal Holy Guardian Angel and more. Again from Equinox of the Gods: "I now incline to believe that Aiwass is not only the God or Demon or Devil once held holy in Sumer, and mine own Guradian Angel, but also a man as I am, insofar as He uses a human body to make His magical link with Mankind, whom He loves"<sup>1</sup>

The New Aeon or Aeon of Horus

The day, or a day of judgment, was periodic, like the deluge. It was the ending of a time, an age or aeon, sometimes called "the ending of the world" by those who were ignorant of the sign-language. It was but an ending of the world, according to the astronomical mythology

--Gerald Massey Ancient Egypt - The Light Of The World, Book X

The term aeon refers to the idea that the cycles of time are a reflection of the same motion on Earth. These cycles represent, amongst other things, the regions of a particular age or aeon.<sup>2</sup> This is an astronomical concept which refers to the precession of the Equinoxes a phenomenon brought about due to the fact that

(t)he axis of the Earth undergoes precession due to a combination of the Earth's nonspherical shape (it is an oblate spheroid, bulging outward at the equator) and the gravitational tidal forces of the Moon and Sun applying torque as they attempt to pull the equatorial bulge into the plane of the ecliptic. The portion of precession due to the combined action of the Sun and the Moon is called lunisolar precession. It consists of a progressive long period motion around the mean ecliptic pole (the values mentioned above), and a small, short periodic (18.6 years) oscillation around the true pole, known as nutation, caused by the changing positions of the Sun and Moon in their orbits. In addition to lunisolar precession, the actions of the other planets of the solar system cause the whole ecliptic to slowly rotate around an axis which has an ecliptic longitude of about 174° measured on the instantaneous ecliptic. This planetary precession shift is only 0.47 arcseconds per year (more than a hundred times smaller than lunisolar precession), and takes place along the instantaneous equator.

This is relevant to the Book of the Law in that Crowley (or Aiwass) declared the Book as the "Word" or Logos of the next Aeon which arrives/arrived sometime in the 20th or 21st century. The basis of the theory is based on the fact that the polar axis precesses from one direction to another, then the equatorial plane of the Earth and the associated celestial equator will move too. Where the celestial equator intersects the ecliptic there are the equinoxes. As seen from the drawing, the orange grid, 5000 years ago one intersection of equator and ecliptic, the vernal equinox was close to the star Aldebaran of Taurus. By now it has shifted to somewhere in the constellation of Pisces.<sup>3</sup>

History is taken and broken down into a series of Aeons, each with its own dominant concept of divinity and its own "formula" of redemption and advancement. According to Aleister Crowley, the last three Aeons have been (1) the Aeon of Isis, (2) the Aeon of Osiris, and (3) the current Aeon of Horus which began in 1904.

The three Aeons

...The modern Aeon of Horus, with our times of self-realization as well as a growing interest in all things spiritual, is considered to be dominated by the Principle of the Child. The Word of its Law is Thelema (will) which is complimented by Agape (love), and its formula is Abrahadabra. Individuality and finding the "True Will" are the dominant aspects; its formula is that of growth, in consciousness and love, toward self-realization.

the crowned and conquering child, who dieth not, nor is reborn, but goeth radiant ever upon His Way. Even so goeth the Sun: for as it is now known that night is but the shadow of the Earth, so Death is but the shadow of the Body, that veileth his Light from its bearer. (Heart of the Master)

And also:

The Aeon of Horus is here: and its first flower may well be this: that, freed of the obsession of the doom of the Ego in Death, and of the limitation of the Mind by Reason, the best men again set out with eager eyes upon the Path of the Wise, the mountain track of the goat, and then the untrodden Ridge, that leads to the ice-gleaming pinnacles of Mastery!

Reception

(T)he story begins on March 16, 1904, when he tries to "shew the Sylphs" by means of a ritual to his wife, Rose. Although she could see nothing, she did seem to enter into a light trance and repeatedly said, "They're waiting for you!" Since Rose had no interest in magick or mysticism, he took little interest. However, on the 18th, after invoking Thoth (the god of knowledge), she mentions Horus by name as the one waiting for him. Crowley, still skeptical, asks her numerous questions about Horus, which she answers accurately—without having any prior study of the subject. Crowley also gives a different chronology, in which an invocation of Horus precedes the questioning. Lawrence Sutin says this ritual described Horus in detail, and could have given Rose the answers to her husband's questions.[4] The final proof was Rose's identification of Horus in the Stele of Revealing, then housed in the Boulak museum, with the exhibit number 666.

On March 20, Crowley invokes Horus, "with great success." Between March 23 and April 8, Crowley has the hieroglyphs on the Stele translated. Also, Rose reveals that her "informant" was not Horus himself, but his messenger, Aiwass. Finally, on April 7, Rose gives Crowley his instructions—for three days he is to enter the "temple" and write down what he heard between noon and 1:00pm.

Crowley wrote The Book of the Law on April 8, 9, and 10, between the hours of noon and 1:00 pm. The place was the flat where they were staying for their honeymoon, which he described as being near the Boulak Museum in a fashionable European quarter of the city, let by the firm Congdon & Co. The apartment was on the ground floor, and the "temple" was the drawing room.<sup>5</sup>

Crowley wrote about AL in great detail throughout the remainder of his life, attempting to decypher its mysteries. He became convinced that Liber Legis introduced a spiritual Law comparable with those spoken by Buddha, Jesus, and Mohammed, and that the Book was itself to be the basis of all modern religion: "This Book is the foundation of the New Aeon, and thus of the whole Work." [9]

The general method that Crowley used to interpret AL was the Qabalah, especially its numerological method of gematria. He writes, "Many such cases of double entendre, paranomasia in one language or another, sometimes two at once, numerical-literal puzzles, and even (on one occasion) an illuminating connexion of letters in various lines by a slashing scratch, will be found in the Qabalistic section of the Commentary." [10] From Magick Without Tears, he writes:

"Now there was enough comprehensible at the time to assure me that the Author of the Book knew at least as much Qabalah as I did: I discovered subsequently more than enough to make it certain without error that he knew a very great deal more, and that of an altogether higher order, than I knew; finally, such glimmerings of light as time and desperate study have thrown on many other obscure passages, to leave no doubt whatever in my mind that he is indeed the supreme Qabalist of all time."<sup>6</sup>

The Cipher

AL II,76: "4 6 3 8 A B K 2 4 A L G M O R 3 Y X 24 89 R P S T O V A L. What meaneth this, o prophet? Thou knowest not; nor shalt thou know ever. There cometh one to follow thee: he shall expound it. But remember, o chosen one, to be me; to follow the love of Nu in the star-lit heaven; to look forth upon men, to tell them this glad word."

--Al vel Legis, II-76

It is the prophet, the 'forth-speaker' who is never to know this mystery. But that does not prevent it from lying within the comprehension of the Beast, kept secret by him in order to prove any one who should claim sonship. (Cf. the note in brackets to the new comment on verse 75.

The last part of this verse presents no difficulty.<sup>7</sup>

Whatever else the Book of the Law might be, it was clearly intended to be a message to the citizens of the "Nuclear Age" which began nearly 40 years after the book was received<sup>8</sup> and only 18 months or so before Crowley's death. Immediately following this sequence of events, the "UFO" phenomenon manifested itself and has, through various turns, defied categorization and baffled serious researchers of whatever perspective, be it the "nuts and bolts" variety, the Ascended Master / Contactee cultists and lately the abductee experiences, with their obvious relation to the demonological lore of the middle ages. Allen Greenfield's work on this subject is essential if one is to make full use of this tool and his two books are now available (see bibliography).

(That) Crowley was a master occultist, though, is certainly true. Central to our premise is a single occult event in which Crowley, then on an extended honeymoon with his wife Rose in Cairo, acted as scribe in the transcription of what purports to be a Holy Book for the New Aeon, known as Liber AL vel Legis, or The Book of the Law... It refers to an internal cipher or secret code which, it predicts, Crowley himself would never transcribe. Predicted, however, is its deciphering by another, who turned out to be Crowley's magical child and one-time heir-apparent, Charles Stansfeld Jones, sometimes called Frater Achad. Achad, in his Book 31, does indeed find the key to the code, but 70 years passed before a full transcription of the code was made.

In the original handwritten manuscript of The Book of the Law, a single page is inexplicably overlaid with a grid, a line, and an enigmatic mark sometimes referred to as a Rose Cross, although it looks much like one of the four keys to the Royal Arch Masonic Cipher. Liber AL was dictated in 1904, according to Crowley, by a preter-human some of his successors say extraterrestrial intelligence calling itself Aiwass. Long after both Achad and Crowley were dead, one Carol Smith and a group in England calling itself the OAA fully deciphered the code. Another 10 years were to pass before a member of OAA's American counterpart, Frater Lamed of QBLH, was to apply computer technology to the cipher solution and produce Lexicon, a computer program that provides a vast, powerful tool for deciphering the code of Liber AL, as well as many variants.<sup>9</sup>

<sup>8</sup> The fact that the Cipher was incorporated into the Book with the obvious intention of having it found at some point "post-Crowley", so to speak, seems compelling evidence, as Crowley himself is told of its inclusion and that, correctly, he will not be the one to decipher it.

The structure of the Cipher was obtained by examination of the original manuscript Liber AL vel Legis.

A key has been left by Crowley, under the direction of Aiwass, wrote Carol Smith in 1980, in order that Thou shalt obtain the Order and Value of the English Alphabet (Ch.1 V.55) The instruction is in Ch.1II V.47 This shall be translated into all tongues but always with the originals in the writing of the beast; for in the chance shape of the letters and their position to one another; in these are mysteries no beast shall divine. Aleister Crowley, in sardonic commentary on his fundamentalist Plymouth Brethren upbringing, called himself the Great Beast. In Crowleys original Liber AL, Sheet 16 of Chapter III is a page containing the balance of verse 47 written over a grid made with simple lines. An unexplained diagonal line crosses the page, and a circle with an X in it appears near the end of this line. Published versions of the text that do not reproduce the original omit this peculiarity, which the text itself cautions against. Carol A. Smith continues: There are letters along the top of the page, and it would seem to be obvious to continue with the alphabet in the manner indicated, but the clue is in the numbers down the side. A is written instead of 1 which suggests that B is 2, C 3 and so on. Fill in all the squares on the grid in this manner, repeating the alphabet when one gets to Z. To proceed to the next step the instruction is written on the page, for those who have eyes to see. Then this line drawn is a key. The line drawn is a diagonal line across the page. If one reads any diagonal across the square one gets the order of the English alphabet to be used in the English Qaballa. Whichever diagonal is read the order of the letters is obtained. There is only one order which can be obtained and all 26 letters appear in this order. Crowley writes, Then this line drawn is a key...and Abrahadabra. Abrahadabra is an 11-fold word, and counting down 11 spaces and numbering the letters thus obtained in sequence gives one the Value of the English Alphabet. Thus we have both order and value, as mandated in Liber<sup>10</sup>

The Values of the English Kabala

A Brief Note on Gematria

Gematria is numerology of the Hebrew language and Hebrew alphabet, and is used by its proponents to derive meaning or relative relationship. Several forms can be identified: the "revealed" form and the "mystical form". The word itself comes from the Greek word 'geometry' and the concept or system is the same as the Greek isopsephy and the Islamic Hisab al-Jumal. Although Hebrew Gematria is the best known now, Greek Gematria predates it by many centuries. There is also a Gematria of Latin-script languages, dating from the early Middle Ages, and very possibly back into Roman times, too. Recent times have also seen an emergence of new gematrias, though these lack a length of exploration that more ancient versions have seen.<sup>11</sup>

In practice, using the Cipher is very simple. To get the value of any English word, you simply convert the values of the letters on the word (or phrase) into the Cipher value using the chart on the previous page. Then add all of the values together and that's the Cipher value of the word. You can also "reduce" the value of the number using a technique often called "theosophical reduction" or Aiq Bakir, which essentially involves taking each number in the cipher value and adding them together to get a single (1-9) digit value of the number. According to the theory, two words with an equivalent value are related by means of this phenomenon, which is to say, the words have an equivalence of a sort. An example of this are the words

| Word              | Aiq Bakir | Cipher Value |
|-------------------|-----------|--------------|
| continuity | 3  | 174   |
| regenerate | 3  | 174   |

have the same value, 174. Therefore, if a word (often a name) also had the same calculated value, it could be examined in reference to these two words. The Aiq Bakir value, 3, is also relevant and is usually applied in relation to the Kabalistic Tree of Life, the 10 Sephirot of spheres are assigned numbers (10 is Malkuth, the Earth, and not used in these situations). In the example, 3 is the value of Binah, the sphere to which is assigned, among other things, the planet Saturn and metallic lead.

Example:

In order to demonstrate the concept, I will use the word "dragon". First I will get the Cipher value of dragon:

$$\begin{aligned} & \mathbf{d=6, r=12, a=1, g=11, o= 7, n= 14} \text{ which gives} \\ & \mathbf{6+12+1+11+7+14 = 51} \text{ the Aiq Bakir value is found} \\ & \mathbf{5+1=6} \text{ and } \mathbf{6} \text{ is Tiphareth, the Sun, etc.} \end{aligned}$$

Words with the same value are:

|                |          |           |
|----------------|----------|-----------|
| drugs   | 6 | 51 |
